\\ The Disruption of Higher Education from a Vice Chancellor's Perspective

With Professor David Lloyd - Vice Chancellor and President at the University of South Australia

1. Do you think online course delivery will soon be a standard part of how people perceive a higher education experience?

2. Do you think if online learning becomes a permanent part of the student experience, universities will have to lower their fees to meet an altered learning experience?

3. Do you think next year there may be a backlog of students wanting to come to Australia, and that it will result in an increased number of international students?

4. For the government's pilot program to bring in students, how concerned are you about the practicalities of quarantine?
